TAX MEASURE
MAY BE READY
WITHIN 10 DAYS

Conferees Are All in Sympathy With Main Objectives of Bill

WORK OUT DIFFERENCES

Conference Is for Purpose of Working Out Senate's Amendments

Washington—Ten days probably will be enough for the house and senate conferees to put the tax bill into shape for final passage. In that event the text of the law should be available before March 1 and the new income tax blanks distributed in ample time for the tax payer to make out his return for the March 15 installment.

The conferees are all in sympathy with the main objectives of the bill. The Republicans appointed by the senate, namely, Mr. Smoot of Utah, Mr. McLean of Connecticut, and Mr. Reed of Pennsylvania, will have the cooperation of Senator Sumners of North Carolina and Senator Gerry of Rhode Island, Democrats. Mr. Smoot has been a staunch champion of the bill ever since the Republicans gave way to his viewpoint on the schedule of surtaxes up to $70,000. He really has played an important part in writing the bill.

WORK WITH TREASURY

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania is a close friend and political association of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and the senators have worked closely with the treasury department. It is therefore merely a matter of how much time is needed in the physical task of going over the bill. The house conferees are also in complete sympathy with the administration's purpose to get a workable bill which will meet the needed revenue of the government and at the same time distribute the burden of taxes equitably.

Many of the provisions adopted by the senate will be dropped as a result of objection by the house conferees, but again several that have been adopted by the senate will remain. It is generally conceded that the senate has improved the house bill because more time has been available to study the measure and correct its defects.

The difficulty will come in removing some of the amendments adopted by the senate which reduce taxes far below the safety line indicated by the secretary of the treasury. It would be surprising if the house bill's provisions on theatre admissions and club dues as well as automobile taxes were retained. The house viewpoint on inheritance taxes will be adopted in the final law.

SENATE EXCEEDS LIMIT

The senate bill would reduce the tax burden by about $456,000,000. Mr. Mellon said $330,000,000 will be about right. So the senate has gone about $126,000,000 beyond the treasury estimate of what the revenues will be under the new law. No figures of course, can be exact on what a revenue bill will produce and there is also the flexibility offered in withholding some of the payments on public debt which are not covered by sinking fund requirements. There is the possibility, too, that better business conditions as a result of the tax bill will increase the revenues. It is doubtful however, whether the administration will take a chance on more than $60,000,000 beyond the Mellon estimated reduction of $330,000,000. That would be a compromise on $930,000,000 already provided. Just what tax reductions already provided in the senate bill will have to be restored is difficult to say, but the likelihood is that miscellaneous general taxes will be revised and that rates on individual incomes will stand as the senate has passed them.

FIGHT OUT DIFFERENCES

The process of handling a bill in conference is to consider as law all those provisions which have been adopted by both the senate and house and to endeavor on compromise on the language of those amendments in which there is a difference of action between the house and senate. Amendments to the house bill therefore are really the ones being considered in conference. A committee has the opportunity to consult the chief executive and the secretary of treasury in a measure of this kind. It is so closely interwoven with the question of estimated receipts. When the conference committee finally reports to both houses it is a case of all or none so the members who have previously insisted on amendments find it easy to recede and accept the bill. Otherwise they would be in the awkward position of blocking the whole measure. The conference report probably will be adopted by overwhelming vote in both houses.

SHUT SALOONS,
BANISH WOMEN
IN TIJUANA

Campaign Against Vice Conditions Started by Two Governments

Tijuana, Mexico—(AP)—On two sides of the international boundary Monday morning moves are under way against Tijuana vice conditions brought into the spotlight by the Petzet tragedy, which resulted Sunday in murder charges being presented in Mexican courts against seven men held in connection with alleged attacks upon Audrey and Clyde Petzet. If found guilty the prosecution will ask that the seven face a firing squad.

In Tijuana 75 per cent of the saloons are reported facing closure as a result of orders by Governor Rodriguez restricting saloons to two streets and placing these under $10,000 cash bond each.

Women entertainers Monday are banished from bars and cafes, and suspicious characters are to be deported or exiled to the Tres Marias Islands in the Gulf of California. In San Diego, Mayor John L. Bacon called a public meeting Monday morning at which plans for action by San Diego in relation to the border town conditions were to be discussed. The question of closing the border to entry except by passport is expected to come before this meeting.

The United States state department took its first step in the investigation of the Petzet case here Sunday when F. H. Bohr, American consul in Mexico, arrived in Tijuana, and took several affidavits in connection with the affair. He returned hurriedly to his Mexican office.

While the cleanup campaign is being pursued, Judge S. Urias, in Mexican federal court, is considering the mass of depositions accompanying the information against the men accused of attacking the two Petzet girls and the responsibility for the latter deaths of the Petzets in San Diego, said to have been suicidal, because of shame resulting from the alleged attacks.

New York—(AP)—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has offered King Faud and the Egyptian nation the sum of $10,000,000 for the erection and maintenance in Cairo of a great museum and archaeological institute.

This fact has become known through announcement in Cairo by Prof. James H. Breasted of the University of Chicago, who will be chairman of the trustees of the new museum. If King Faud accepts certain conditions for the gift which Mr. Rockefeller desires to impose, in New York an agent for Mr. Rockefeller characterized the announcement as premature.

Palm Beach Thrills As Count Salm Fondles Son

Palm Beach, Fla.—(AP)—Still tingling over the thrill it got Sunday when Count Ludwig Salm von Hoogstraeten met his infant son, Peter Constantin, for the first time, Palm Beach society anxiously awaited statements which were promised Monday by the count and H. H. Rogers, father of the countess.

The thrill came when the count attempted to banish the private detective the Countess Millicent sent along with the nurse and young Peter. The sleuth, Genus Gotham, was not of the banishing type and the Austrian's glare failed to wither him. He told the count he wasn't at all tickled to let him see the baby in his room any way.

The count waived his papers which have been signed by Justice O'Malley of New York and demanded his rights. The detective insisted on the garden or beach.

Baby Peter started to cry. His grandma, the dowager countess, had hysterics. The hullaboo was heard all through corridors of the exclusive Royal Ponkanan and the gathered crowd had its thrill. The countess and her father were nowhere to be seen. The countess was entertaining a party of friends on the beach near her home after which they went to a dance at a road house. Then the nurse and the detective picked up the baby and left the count and dowager countess accompanying him to the elevator, the dowager countess still weeping hysterically. The count tried to hold his son, who wailed the louder and quivered the "dithers" his father told the detective that unless he could see his son in the privacy of his room he did not care to see him at all. "I came thousands of miles to see my son," he declared. "I didn't come to see the mother. I don't care a damn about seeing her. I only want to see the baby."

After the detective and nurse left with the baby the count went into conference with William Baruch of Port Chester, N. Y., his lawyer and William Aubit publisher of the Pictorial Review who has been acting as the count's adviser as to what the next step would be in obtaining the privileges extended to him under the New York order.

The opinion handed down Monday, written by federal Judge Manton, declared to go into the question of the validity of the president's commutation of Chapman's sentence. The court held that only the United States government would have the right to enter an objection in this connection and pointed out that the government, through Assistant United States Attorney Cohen, had urged that the sentence of the Connecticut state court be carried out.

It is now expected that Chapman will carry his appeal to the United States supreme court. Frederick J. Gruhl, his counsel, stated at the time the argument was made to the appellate court that if the decision was adverse, he would make the attempt.

Two men drove up in an automobile as she stepped from the street car and one rushed at her, snatching the satchel and knocking her to the pavement. When she was removed to a hospital, several head concussions were the only indication of how serious she might be injured. The robbers escaped.

Madison—(AP)—A story that the "mummified" body of a man apparently that of an early French explorer had been found in the trunk of a tree near Ladysmith, Wis., was discredited at the University of Wisconsin Monday.

FORMER LOVE OF CATHCART

Arrest of Titled Englishman Is Asked for by Immigration Officials

Montreal, Que.—(AP)—The Earl of Craven, named as correspondent in the action by which Vera, Countess Cathcart, was divorced in 1922, expressed great surprise Monday when he learned that the American department of labor had issued a warrant for his arrest. The Earl seemed glad he was safe on Canadian soil, saying with great satisfaction: "They can't get me here."

He stated that he would sail from Halifax for Bermuda at the earliest opportunity while his wife would leave New York Saturday for the same destination.

Montreal, Que.—(AP)—The Earl of Craven was staying at the Ritz Carlton Hotel, Montreal, Monday. He refused to be interviewed.

ASK FOR ARREST

New York—(AP)—A single standard of morals is now being applied by immigration authorities in the cases of Earl of Craven and the Countess of Cathcart, whose elopement in 1922 startled the British nobility.

While the countess was excluded last Wednesday many protests were made especially since it developed that the Earl had been admitted last November.

Commissioner Curran at Ellis Island Sunday, however, telephoned the department of labor for a warrant for the arrest of the Earl. It will be served as soon as it arrives here, unless, as has been suggested, the Earl decides to go to Canada to avoid complications. His wife is with him and he has expressed a keen desire for "peace and quietness."

The countess was ordered excluded on grounds of "moral turpitude." This act was questioned about his relation with the countess after it was learned that he had entered the United States without difficulty.

The impression prevails in official circles at Washington that the countess may avoid further embarrassment by voluntarily sailing for Europe but she says that she will fight the issue as long as the Earl is permitted to remain here.

The Earl was permitted to enter the country when he answered "no" to the usual question of inspectors whether he had ever been convicted or admitted a crime involving moral turpitude. The countess, when asked the same question, answered "yes."

The Earl questioned by immigration inspectors Sunday night at the Parkway home of Bradley Martin, his uncle, made the same admission that the countess had. The request for a warrant was sought by Commissioner Curran on the basis of this report.

Schumann-Heink Returns
To Metropolitan Opera

New York—(AP)—A 19-year-old girl and a 60-year-old grandmother are equally happy Monday over their coming appearances at the Metropolitan Opera house.

Marion Talley, Kansas City soprano, the youngest girl to sing as a prima pal at the Metropolitan since Patti Page's debut at 16, has reached the threshold of one of her most cherished ambitions.

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, whom the Metropolitan has just called, will return to the scenes of her early triumphs 28 years ago when she made her first appearance there. Sunday Miss Talley devoted several hours to practicing her role as Gilda in "Rigoletto" as 44 friends who knew her as a choir singer in Kansas City, started for New York to hear her debut Wednesday. Others plan to make the trip which has been estimated as costing a total of $75,000.

Among those coming here is the young singer's father, Charles M. Talley, a railroad telegraph operator who is taking his first vacation in 19 years to hear his daughter sing. It was through his untiring efforts that she received her musical education.

Mme. Schumann-Heink, mother of eight children and grandmother of 11, after 10 years absence from the oper-

MINE BLAST

Explosion at Powhatan
Mine in Ohio

Bellaire, Ohio—(AP)—One miner was killed, 19 others were injured, one perhaps fatally at the Powhatan mine 16 miles south of here Monday morning. Six hundred other men in the mine escaped uninjured.

An explosion shortly before 2 o'clock Monday morning wrecked the interior of the main shaft, resulting in the death of one miner and injury of 19 others.

By a strange fate, the miner killed was drowned. The blast threw him into the air and he landed face down in a puddle of water.

He has not been identified. The mine is owned by the Powhatan Mining Co. Cause of explosion is not known. The blast rocked houses in the vicinity and flames shot 100 feet higher than the mine shaft.

The Pennsylvania railroad made up a special train here and immediately dispatched it to the workings. Injured are being brought here on it.

REFEREES OF BOTH HOUSES
STUDY BILL

Must Change Revenue Measure to Satisfy Senate, House and Treasury

MAY DIMINISH REDUCTION

Expect Restoration of Tax on Passenger Cars, Admissions and Dues

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The problem of revising the tax reduction bill so as to meet the approval of the house, senate and treasury Monday confronted referees appointed by the two chambers to straighten out points of difference.

As passed by the senate, the bill provides for reduction by $456,261,000 or more than $125,000,000 in excess of that voted by the house, and about $100,000,000 more than Secretary Mellon believes the condition of the treasury will permit this year.

A considerable portion of the increase appears to be doomed by the attitude of house leaders who would adhere to their own figures. Chairman Green of the ways and means committee heading the house conferees, has declared that any increase over the $330,000,000 reduction proposed by the house not only threatened a treasury deficit, but jeopardized enactment of several pending bills calling for increased appropriations, including the public buildings bill.

Mr. Green also declared that while government actuaries estimated the senate bill would reduce taxes by $456,261,000 this calendar year its annual reduction would amount to $600,000,000 annually when the bill goes fully into effect in later years.

The house conferees also have more or less support from the three Republican representatives of the senate, in as much as the major increase in reduction voted by the senate were made on the votes of Democrats aided by some Republican insurgents.

The taxes which seem most likely to be restored to the bill possibly at lower rates, are those on automobile passenger cars, admissions and dues.

Without a word of debate, the house Monday formally disagreed to the senate amendments to the bill. When Chairman Green asked unanimous consent that the bill be sent to the conference, Representative Sweeney, Republican of Michigan, who has advocated total repeal of the automobile tax, instead of merely a reduction from 5 to 3 per cent as provided by the house objected. The chairman then moved that the bill be sent to conference and it was immediately voted.

Red Hot Mamma Goes

The two hundred and fifty egg Wisconsin incubator owned by Mrs. Fred Harrison, Jr., 204 N. That ad was a red hot salesman for the "red hot mamma" for in a few days the incubator was sold.

WILBUR BOGAN ARRESTED AS HOLDUP MAN

Former County Motorcop and Companion Charged With Intent to Rob

Wilbur Bogan, Little Chute, former county "motorcop," and George Muench of this city, pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault with intent to rob when they were arraigned Monday morning in municipal court on the complaint of George Dukwin, 229 N. Richmond-st. Their trial was set for Saturday, Feb. 27.

Bogan is free on $500 bail, but Muench was placed in the county jail in default of bail for the same amount. The pair were accused of committing the alleged offense Friday evening and Dukwin swore out his warrant Saturday. Undersheriff Earl Schwartz arrested Bogan, whom Dukwin recognized late Saturday afternoon at Little Chute and he alleged that Muench was the John Doe named in the warrant as the second assailant. The men were accused of carrying weapons.

Dukwin came to the sheriff's office Saturday and told a rather disjointed story of his treatment of the previous night. He said that he was leaving Appleton to go to Mackville when Bogan and another man whom he failed to recognize attempted to stop him on W. Wisconsin-ave. He had sped away in his car and the men had followed, catching him at Mackville.

Here he was forced into their car with Bogan while Muench drove his machine to this city, he alleged. He was taken to the river and the men threatened to "kick him under the ice" unless he "came across." According to his statement, on the side of the river he had no money with him but would give them some if they took him to his rooms above the Andrew Hotel saloon at 229 N. Richmond-st. he was taken with threats against his "good health" ringing in his ears all the way.

At the saloon, Dukwin "wandered" into the wrong apartment, that of Mr. Tekel, and the would-be robbers fled hastily at this maneuver, when Mr. Tekel came to Dukwin's aid.

OFFICIALS GO TO CITY DADS MEET

Mayor and Wife and Attorney Attending Municipalities Conference

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., Mrs. Goodland, and A. C. Posser, city attorney, have gone to Milwaukee to attend a conference called by the Charles E. Hammersley, president of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities to make a showing before the state interim tax committee which will conduct a public hearing on taxation matters there Tuesday. Mrs. Goodland, together with the wives of officials from other cities, will be the guest of the Milwaukee city administration at special entertainment provided.

The meeting will protest against the state policy of taking away an increasing amount of revenue belonging to the municipalities. Mr. Hammersley's call was as follows:

"Unless the local governments of this state arouse themselves and put up a fight, I have no hesitancy in predicting that the next legislature will make further inroads into your funds and cripple local activities."

For a number of years each succeeding legislature, in order to reduce state taxes, has reached out and taken funds from the local town, village and city treasuries. They have taken away in turn the railroad, telegraph, telephone, insurance and automobile taxes. Our saloon license money was virtually wiped out, while most of the funds on prohibition enforcement go to the state and nation.

"The last legislature made a further inroad by reducing the municipality's share of the income tax from 70 to 50 per cent. This kind of business will continue as long as the towns, villages and cities of this state fail to rouse themselves and demand that this practice cease."

No arrests had been made up to Monday noon by the police department of motorists who have not yet sent for their 1926 license plates, but the department was to start its campaign in earnest Monday afternoon, according to Chief George T. Prim. Many local drivers applied for their licenses since Saturday morning. Some of the motorists are trying a new idea, that of passing their money order receipts high on their windshield to avoid being stopped by police.

WISCONSIN WEATHER

Generally fair tonight and Tuesday; continued cold tonight; slowly rising temperature Tuesday afternoon.

WEATHER CONDITIONS
A high pressure area with decidedly low temperatures and mostly clear skies is overspreading the central portion of the country this morning, with freezing weather over the southern plains and zero over the extreme north. This is expected to dominate conditions in this section tonight, with continued low temperature and fair weather. Lower pressure appears in the far northwest, and there may be somewhat of a moderation in temperature here by Tuesday afternoon or night as the "high" moves past and this "low" advances. Rains or snows have been quite general over the east over the weekend, with a low pressure area moving up the Ohio valley.

CIVIC CHEST IS WORKING WELL IN 16 U. S. CITIES

Questionnaire Indicates Combined Campaigns Are Successful

Favorable reports from all the cities which answered the request of the welfare committee of the chamber of commerce for information on the success of the community fund project have been received.

Sixteen cities ranging in population from 11,447 to 38,969, but most of them having a population around the 20,000 mark, reported on the questionnaire, according to Hugh G. Corbett, managing secretary of the chamber of commerce, who has compiled a chart from the data given.

The principal question in which the committee was interested was "What is your opinion as to the benefit of community fund?" In reply, all sixteen cities were unanimously in favor of the community fund method of raising money, in preference to the old way of conducting separate drives for funds. The argument was that the combined campaign saves time and money. They further stated that it prevents agencies from overlapping in their activities, thus making the community agencies more efficient.

MEET WITH WILLIAMS

This survey will be made a subject of study by the welfare committee when it meets with Aubrey Williams, secretary of the Wisconsin Conference of Social Work, Wednesday night. The committee has been enlarged through the appointment of a number of persons representing agencies outside the chamber of commerce.

Community fund campaigns have been conducted by practically all of the sixteen cities questioned for at least three years. Five cities have used the plan for four years and one for seven years, it was brought out in the survey.

Although a few of the cities have only about a half dozen agencies cooperating in the project, the majority of the cities have from 10 to 17 organizations working together in the merged drives. Madison, Wis., which has used the idea for three years has 14 organizations cooperating.

The method in which cooperating agencies arrived at the several apportionments was twofold, it was brought out. One method was by "careful examination of agencies' budgets for three years previous to entrance into the community fund idea," the other "by taking into consideration the needs and worthiness of the organization rather than its ability to raise money in the past," Mr. Corbett reports.

Following are the cities reporting, with the number of agencies cooperating and the amounts pledged last year: Glenn Falls, N. Y., 15 agencies, $5,275; White Plains, N. Y., 7 agencies, $16,266; Clarksburg, N. Y., 17 agencies, $63,700; Mason City, Iowa, 7 agencies, $40,000; Sedalia, Mo., 6 agencies, $25,400; Barboursville, Ohio, 7 agencies, $10,000; Attleboro, Mass., 11 agencies, $41,027; Ashtabula, Ohio, 9 agencies, $30,470; Madison, Wis., 14 agencies, $93,000; Texarkana, Ark., 6 agencies, $32,000; Casper, Wyo., 10 agencies, $45,167; Durham, N. C., 7 agencies, $50,500 (1924); Thaca, N. Y., 10 agencies, $54,000 (1924); Bristol, Conn., 5 agencies, $11,411; Owosso, Mich., 7 agencies, $24,000 (1923); Morrisstown, N. J., 16 agencies, $175,556. The last mentioned city has a population of 17,265.

Former Appleton Youth Designs Big Building

Isadore M. Lewis, a graduate of Appleton high school and of Lawrence college has designed the largest apartment house between New York and Chicago to be built in Highland Park, Detroit. The building will be 15 stories high and will house 380 apartments.

While he was attending school about ten years ago, Mr. Lewis was employed by W. W. DeLong, Appleton architect. As a boy he earned his way through school. After being graduated from Lawrence college, he went to Philadelphia to study architecture and then worked in Chicago, Gary, Indiana, and Detroit.

Although employed by one of the best architects in the city of Detroit, Mr. Lewis felt that he was not progressing fast enough, and proceeded to rent a large office in the center of the business district of Detroit and start in business for himself. On the second day after his launching out for himself, Mr. Lewis received contracts for buildings worth $250,000, and since that time he has had an almost phenomenal success. His latest achievement was receiving the contract for the mammoth apartment house in a suburb of Detroit.

Harry Silverman, builder of several large apartment buildings in the city of Detroit, will start construction of the big apartment in February. The building is designed on Gothic lines in the Tudor style, with original additions by Mr. Lewis.

INDIANS AFTER GREATER REASURE OF SELF CONTROL

Menominees Send Delegation to Washington to Confer With Government

With a view of improving living conditions on their reservation and developing its natural resources, a delegation of three Indians from the Menominee reservation in Shawanago has gone to Washington to confer with officials of the department of the interior. They are Mitchell Oshkennaw, Jerome Lawe Jr. and Ralph Freudenberg. The Menominees held a council Jan. 9, at Neopit and appointed a delegation of six to visit the department. The request for permitting a delegation at Washington was granted by Hubert J. Work, secretary of the interior, with the condition that the commission consist of only three members. This necessitated the calling of another council which was held Feb. 6, at Neopit and at which the three delegates were named.

One of the principal missions of the delegation is to alter the construction of a proposed two band saw mill at Neopit, by making it a single band mill, so that work for the Indians will be assured all year around. The double band saw mill would operate only a few months of the year having a much greater capacity for turning out lumber, and thus would

RIVER ROAD PUPILS HOLD THREE CONTESTS

Arithmetic, spelling, singing and declamatory contests were held Thursday afternoon at the River Road school of Menasha District No. 2. Winners in the contests will represent the school in town contests to be held in April. Mrs. Harry Stroeb, Mrs. W. A. Briggs and Mrs. George Goehring were the judges. Winners were: Spelling, Alice Dobberpuhl; arithmetic, Carlton Schneider; arithmetic and spelling, Lillian Guckenborg; declamatory, Lillian Guckenborg and singing, Helen Stroeb and Evelyn Goehring. Among visitors at the school Thursday were Mrs. Frank Stroeb, Mrs. C. A. Phillips and Miss Mildred Stroeb.

Children of the River Road school gave a Lincoln program Friday afternoon. Plans are underway for the organization of a Parent-Teacher association for the district. Miss Agnes Junk of Kaukauna is the treasurer.

Mrs. Elmer O'Keefe, 507 S. Walnut-st., submitted to an operation at St. Elizabeth hospital Tuesday morning. Although she still is at the hospital, Mrs. O'Keefe's condition is said to be favorable.

Minimize the amount of employment for the Indians.

Other matters to be taken up are the amending of the logging act of 1905 by striking out the clause which permits white men to cut timber on the reservation, changing of allotments, establishment of a reservation board of directors instead of the present advisory board, and development of water power on the reservation under the supervision of the tribe.

FARMERS INCOME UP 12 PER CENT

Farm Receipts Increase Faster Than Cost of Living Survey Shows

A survey of conditions in Wisconsin shows an increase of 12 per cent in the farmer's income and an estimated increase of 10 per cent in the merchandise he will buy in 1926 according to a report issued by P. J. Jacobs, secretary-treasurer of the Wisconsin Retail Hardware association, which held its thirtieth annual convention at the Milwaukee Auditorium February 2, 3, 4 and 5.

Prospects for the larger towns continue good. Every one of Wisconsin's more important cities has been transacting more business than at this time last year. Since the outlook for the first four months of 1926 is very satisfactory, retail trade in these centers should remain at a somewhat higher level than during the early months of 1925," says the report.

Teach in Maine

Dr. James L. Mursell, Lawrence professor of education, will teach at the university of Maine, Orono, this summer. Dr. Mursell's course will be in junior-senior high school administration, high school curriculum, and school hygiene.

Miss Viola Hennial, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hennial was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital Saturday for an operation for appendicitis.

THE TAX BILL PASSES

The senate has passed the tax bill, carrying an estimated reduction of $150,000,000 in taxes this year. The bill, because of minor differences, goes to conference for adjustment with the house. The majority by which the bill was passed in the senate came somewhat as a surprise, as only nine votes were recorded against it. This substantiates the fact, apparent from the beginning, that the final measure will be non-partisan. The Democrats in the main have shown commendable restraint in not trying to embarrass the administration for political gain. There was some divergence of opinion due to party principles, but it was comparatively slight—so slight in fact that when it came to a vote the Democrats lined up as a unit for the bill.

The senate has reduced the revenue expectations of the government by $425,000,000 more than the house, and while the administration has declared the reduction excessive and more than the finances of the country could stand, it is a moral certainty that the president will sign the bill as passed by the senate, provided the house concurs. The probability is there will be concessions by both the house and senate in reaching an agreement, but the prospect now is that this will be done promptly and that the measure will be signed and become a law in time for the March 15 returns.

Either the house or senate bill will be acceptable to the country, so that whatever the joint product may be it will have public approval. The reduced taxes that are now assured will be a welcome relief not only to taxpayers, but to business and consumers as well. Every large reduction in taxation tends to keep down the cost of living and to encourage the use of capital in productive enterprise. That is what the country needs more than anything else for the maintenance of prosperity.

RIDICULOUS LAW

We think the public will read with amazement the story from New York that the divorced wife of the Earl of Cathcart has been excluded from the United States by a special board of examiners because she has admitted that she was the offending party in the divorce proceedings, and that her offense involved moral turpitude. Since when have we been applying such standards to admission of visitors from abroad? We can more than agree with the statement of one of her traveling companions that while it may be there was nothing for the board to do under the law but exclude her, it remains "a silly law."

The state department made itself ridiculous in the handling of the Countess Karolyi case and we wonder if the department of labor, which appears to have the final say in the Cathcart case, will make itself equally ludicrous. Not only is the law, if there is such a law, silly, but it is outrageous and indefensible. We fail to see by what right the government of the United States judges the morals of people, aside from criminals, who apply for entrance to this country and are otherwise equally acceptable. If we are officially so touchy about morals would it not be well to exclude some of the movie actresses and those of our deluxe coterie who go abroad to raise Ned, divorce each other on grounds quite the same as those in the Cathcart case, and then come back to a friendly welcome of movie fans and the social elite? And how about England and the continent admitting our seagoats, beside whom Lady Cathcart is a paragon of virtue? Before we throw stones at other people's glass houses, we should look after our own. If morals in this country are any better than they are in Great Britain or Europe as a whole, the fact has yet to be established.

The action of the immigration authorities in the Cathcart case is incredible. It cannot be possible that the secretary of labor will give it his approval.

HIGH COST OF EDITING

To revise the speeches of senators and representatives in congress cost the United States government $220,327 in the past fiscal year. Get the idea correctly. This was not the original cost of printing the wisdoms of the legislators, but the cost of printing the changes which resulted from mature afterthought. In the preceding fiscal year the cost was $54,510 less; so we gather it is becoming more expensive to the taxpayers for the orators and literati in congress to change their minds and their rhetoric.

It is well for the people that senators and representatives are not editing newspapers. The editorial pages would cost more under congressional direction than the rest of the sheets. Editors generally reach decisions or form opinions before they write, and they are in the habit of revising their writings in the typed manuscripts.

Critical citizens may ask whether the revisions are worth a quarter of a million dollars. The answer is yes. It is worth that much politically to the congressional spellbinders. And we venture the opinion that it is worth the price to see the mental ebullitions in their finished state, rather than the raw.

FLAMING YOUTH

University professors, sociologists, clergymen and society women discussed "flaming youth" at a social meeting in a St. Louis church. The event was scheduled as a friendly debate, and the audience, which occupied all the seats, expected vigorous denunciation of the irresponsibility of the rising generation. However, all the speakers, three men and two women, criticized parents for breaches of conduct in children.

Hereditry and environment were mentioned. Parents, it was said, lead jazzy lives. The same levity, indifference, disrespect and waywardness displayed by children are shown by parents. Finally, all speakers blamed the system, as it might be called, in which we live.

This is a general conclusion. The conditions in which we work and live are new, as yet, we are not accommodated to them. We retain our sentiments, our ideals, but we have compromised some of our principles in order to prosper and acquire money and standing.

The change is to come through the decision of experience and thinking, and not by propaganda or regulation. In time we or our children will perceive how old principles of living and doing business, the simple conditions, fit well with complex conditions.

TRAFFIC

"The world do move," is truly said—and faster every day. We all fight hard to get ahead, but, frankly, does it pay? With crazy traffic speeding every human being's pined. We don't know where it's leading, but we know we're going wild. The public streets and highways are the careless driver's place, like lightning, through the highways, goes the frantic human race. The spirit seems to seize us, as we're stepping on the gas. The thrill is there to please us—we must let nobody pass. What matters, when we're tearing, just so long as we get through? What matters what the rushing into our nervous strain may do? To sit before the driving wheel's the only thing we need, to kindle our hearts with the great desire for speed. Our hearts are beating faster, but the warning comes in vain. We haven't time to realize the roar and fear of the strain. I guess we'll keep on going till we're driven to the brink of breakdown, then we'll likely take the time to stop and think.

Nice thing about working in a bank is half the time when you get down there you find it is a holiday.

Of course you may slip and break a leg, but one danger lessened by winter is swallowing watermelon seeds.

A curious thing about this world is people who have no right to be cheerful are our cheerful people.

A CHEERFUL ATMOSPHERE

The excessive dryness or low humidity of the air in the overheated dwelling, office or shop in the winter season when artificial heating is required, explains the squeaks and cracks in furniture, the piano keying out of tune, the plants not doing well, the roughness and chapping of the skin of the individual much of the time indoors, the rustiness of fine book bindings and the spoiling of good tempers. Overheating means heating the air to a temperature above 65 degrees F.

This is the time for the manager, father, housekeeper, or whoever purports to be the general caretaker of the establishment to put his foot down and a suitable number of good reliable mercury thermometers up, and issue the necessary ukase abolishing attempts to regulate the temperature by mercurial sensations. The mercurial reading, the height of the mercury, should be the arbitrary guide and all persons whose sensations are not in accord with the thermometer should be advised to consult a physician about whatever ails them. This is no joke. There really is something wrong with those who cannot feel comfortable when the atmosphere is moderately heated, say at 65 to 67 degrees F.

I can suggest what ails a good many of them. I told about their trouble here last Wednesday (February 10). They are affected with hypothyroidism, deficient thyroid gland function, and the sorely need a suitable iodine ration.

Others who complain when the room temperature is below 65 are hypersensitive from the depraving and weakening effect of prolonged coddling. They have become accustomed to hot-house environment, a temperature soaring up around 74 degrees F. and the Saharalike dryness that goes with it, and their vasomotor mechanism is pretty low and their vitality is just as low—they are in the worst possible condition to put up a fight with any serious illness. For their own good these hypersensitive people should not be permitted to dictate or impose their peculiar standards of air conditioning in home, office or public conveyance on normal people. The booze hound always knows his poison is good for everybody else.

Now is the time for the boss of the establishment to make a beginning. It will not succeed, of course, not right away. But it is a beginning. It leaves a long summer ahead to crush the question over, and then when the first cold days of autumn roll around, things will or should be all set for a successful adoption of hygienic air conditioning. Generally the air in fall, winter or spring retains a fair degree of relative humidity or moisture so long as it is not heated above 65.

A household, office or shop atmosphere which is thus kept reasonably well conditioned, by the arbitrary rule of the thermometer and irrespective of mercurial or fickle sensations, is a cheerful atmosphere because it is so much easier on everybody's temper.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Show Down

I have two grandsons, one 4½, the other 6, living in Yonkers, N. Y. These two children have had everything that passes under the cheerful name of "children's diseases," and typhoid fever too. The elder has had his tonsils and adenoids removed. They sleep in separate rooms and have a large yard in which to play outdoors most of the day. Their mother insists on bathing them both twice a day, summer and winter. I should like your expert opinion as to how often a child should be bathed. I think too much bathing makes them more susceptible to these diseases. (P. J. S.)

Answer—I can't say that excessive bathing makes a child more susceptible to any disease, but gosh, old fish books I was a boy only a few years ago, and I know just how the poor kids must feel about it. A bath three times a week is ample for the average boy in the winter time, and one seven times a week in the good old summer time when the swimmin' is fine. That's my studied opinion and I mean to stick to it even though I get fired.

ROLLLO

FILM INVENTOR MISSED FORTUNE

Jean Le Roy Lost Big Opportunity When He Failed to Patent Invention

From Popular Science Monthly.
Every time Jean A. Le Roy sees a movie he thinks of what might have been. He might be rolling about in a magnificent car, he might have his own yacht, he might summer in the mountains and winter on the Riviera. He might send to Uncle Sam each year income taxes in many figures. He might have been leading the glittering life of a movie magnate.

Instead, he is a hard working machinist in New York city, an expert at repairing moving picture machines. And all because, more than 29 years ago he neglected to take out a patent.

Back in '93 Jean Le Roy, as eager a mechanic then as he is today, was busy putting together a strange contrivance. It was an odd looking arrangement of wheels, levers and gears that he constructed, but the next year the queer machine threw a film on the screen for the first time in this country. It was the first motion picture projector in America, and Le Roy didn't take out a patent on it.

Once an idea is suggested there are a thousand who seize upon it to alter or improve it. This was the case with the first projector. When Le Roy made his projector, "moving pictures" were considered either a miracle or a joke. That they might be practicable was not even considered.

When the inventor realized the value of his invention it was already too late. He invented other devices, and these he patented. He was kept poor, he explains, defending these patents against theft.

Recently he patented an improvement for projectors. Almost immediately there were 25 infringements, all of which he had to fight in court.

PROPOSES NEW CALENDAR WITH 13-MONTH YEAR

Dr. Marvin of United States Weather Bureau Criticizes Gregorian System

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C.—The Gregorian year will lose eight days by the year 13,000. By the year 3600, one day will be irretrievably lost, and each year that passes sees the present method or reckoning time losing time at a definite rate. So, in order to prevent this and to standardize the calendar forever, Dr. Charles F. Marvin, of the United States weather bureau, has proposed a new calendar which, he says, will stop the practice of wastings and create a simpler arrangement of time keeping than now is in vogue.

Dr. Marvin's new day and year schedule will be an advancement over the Gregorian calendar, just as that was an improvement over the old Julian calendar.

The Gregorian calendar has been in England and America for less than 200 years. When George Washington was a stripling he celebrated his birthday on Feb. 11, as the Julian calendar was then in use. Just before he was 21, on Sept. 3, 1752, Great Britain changed calendars and her honest subjects found they were 11 days older and perhaps that many behind the rent. No one could die or be born on the 11 days omitted, but Washington, at least, made it up, for he was not 21 until Feb. 22, 1753, so his year was just the same.

ALMOST UNIVERSAL

The Gregorian calendar came into almost universal use in 1923, when, on Oct. 14, the Greek Churches threw away the Julian system and adopted the more advanced style. They did this by calling the first of October the fourteenth, thus eliminating the 13 days of excess erroneously introduced by the Julian leap year rule. The Eastern Churches, always strongly opposed on religious grounds to the adoption of the Gregorian calendar, have set up a new and different rule which provides that all years divisible by 4 are leap years, except that only those centuries remain leap years when the century numbers divided by 9 yield a remainder of 2 or 6. This rule, according to Dr. Marvin, is slightly more accurate than the Gregorian rule, but not so accurate as the one he proposes, namely to omit four leap years in 500 years. These leap years are now omitted in 400 years.

He has his opponents on religious grounds. These people are opposed to his plan because of the verse in the Bible which reads: "Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work." But to persons who voice opposition, he answers that he intends to keep inviolate the seven day week, and that such antagonism usually arises from not understanding what he is trying to do.

EXTRA MONTH

Dr. Marvin's calendar would equalize the length of the months by making each of 28 days duration and adding an extra month to the year. By starting on the first of January, 1928, which falls on Sunday, this calendar could be brought into use without affecting the regular order of things. He would not attempt to counter the exact tally of days since the first Sabbath, since that is impossible, and the dates are hopelessly lost in the centuries that have elapsed, but by starting on New Year's Day, 1928, his result could be accomplished with little or no trouble to anybody.

According to this schedule each month would be of exactly four weeks duration, thereby doing away with the extra two or three days in the months and in the case of leap year, one extra day in the year. The year 1928 is a leap year and must have 366 days. The new calendar, divided into thirteen months would provide for 364 days. But the two extra days that occur in leap year and the one extra day that occurs every common year would be taken care of by setting them aside and not giving them any week day name. They would be made public holidays and therefore would not interfere with any schedule. They would be skipped, or disregarded, as it were.

The 365th day of the year would fall in the same order as Dec. 31, does now, and would not make any difference in the year. The extra day of leap year would not fall in the same order as Jan. 1 does now, but would be intercalated between the sixth and seventh months of the new calendar.

The extra months of the new calendar would be the seventh month. Dr. Marvin's reason for so placing it is that it would cause less trouble in the matter of displacement of familiar dates. By his new system, he says, "mankind will be spared the constantly shifting day names in the different years now experienced."

TWO FLOORS OF GOOD THINGS TO WEAR

Adventures In The Library

By ARNOLD MULDER

IS STORY TELLING REALLY IMPORTANT?

Almost nobody believes that it really is—not really. Not in the sense in which they believe that selling bonds is important, or building houses, or pleading law cases, or preaching sermons or lecturing to chautauqua audiences, or making automobiles, or serving in the army, or passing bills in the legislature. All these things are what is known as "work" while story telling is—well, only story telling. It is no longer regarded by cultivated people as a device of the devil, as was the case only a couple of generations ago, but the very large majority of people have got no further or even now than to regard it as a mere amusement. They probably devour thousands of stories, but fiction is not a genuine mental food to them; they take it as they would an ice cream soda.

They can be persuaded that story telling is important if you can show them that story telling is something else than story telling. If for instance you can convince them that a story is not a story but a good sermon, or that it will advance prison reform, or that it will help the child welfare movement, or that it contains important statistics on sugar consumption, or that it will warm the nation against the Japanese menace, or that it will encourage universal peace, then the telling of the story is important.

REALLY BEWILDERED
But story telling as story telling—almost everybody is honestly bewildered by the suggestion that that is important in itself. I am not painting a fanciful picture. I am trying to portray accurately the point of view of large masses of very intelligent people, ministers and professors and lawyers and business men and lecturers and writers. They may see utility in more story telling if it makes money for the story teller, but that sidesteps the issue, obviously. That story telling has any social value aside from mere amusement is an idea that is incomprehensible to a very large percentage of intelligent people.

Genuine story tellers are far fewer than is generally supposed. We have a dozen or more, at the same time it is highly blessed. There are hundreds, thousands, who pretend to be story tellers, who are known as story tellers, and who make money by going to tell stories for print, but on a very few usually make story telling a genuine vocation and as often as not they are comparatively unknown to their contemporaries.

OLD CUSTOM
It has always been that way. A tale France draws a contrast between Homer and the soldiers of Homer day. The soldier's work was regarded as important—really important; Homer's work of story telling was looked upon, in France's recreation of the period, as mere story telling. If from the vantage point of today we can see that Homer's story telling has been a thousand times more important to the world than the work of the soldiers of the period.

It is not possible or likely even in a thousand years hence some thirty century Anatolian France will draw comparison between some story teller of today who is nothing else than mere story teller and the twentieth century business man for instance and find that the story teller has been a thousand times more useful, a thousand times more really important than the business man.

The importance of the story teller in any given time cannot be absolutely proved—no more than you can prove the importance of the mother tells her baby at bedtime as compared with the importance of the lessons he learns in school. By the social value of story telling for its own sake can be suggested by such examples as Homer and the soldiery class of Athens.

A constant told one of the world's greatest stories, "Robinson Crusoe" and he had to make his contemporaries accept it by artificially pretending he was telling it to improve morals. But who can deny that that master story has had greater utility for the world than most of the so-called "real work" of Deane's day? Yet story telling is important—really important.

SAMUEL PEPYS WAS BIG FLIRT

Ancient Dairy Contains Formidable Array of Women from Every Rank

From The Mentor.
For 100 years the world has enjoyed the indiscreet and delightful confidences of Samuel Pepys' diary of his daily doings between New Year's day, 1660, and May, 3, 1669. The diary gives us 10 years of a busy and diversified existence with the lad off.

There is a marvelous array of women in the diary: ladies of station and artisans' wives and serving maids and titlers and actresses, and the wife who was only 15 when she married him. He loved them all, including his wife, of whose beauty he was proud—and jealous, too. He was stinky with her till shortly before she died along toward the end of the diary, but Pepys shows his pride in such an entry as this: "My wife extraordinary fine today in her flowery tabby suit. everybody in love with it, and indeed she is very fit and handsome in it."

She was jealous also, but she had plenty of cause, dear soul. She risked the plague to return to London to spy on him he had stuck to his government desk, which few officials did. By great luck for Pepys it was not that day but the next that Mrs. Knipp, the actress, went to see him. Mrs. Knipp, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. this and Doll that, Deb Willet, Mervin, the maid whom Pepys, a Muscovite, taught to sing—Pepys, a Muscovite, taught to keep her eyes turning to keep track of them and even then she could not. He kissed Nell Gwynn, the actress, when Mrs. Knipp took him back stage, but his wife was along and kissed Nell, too, the time.

CUBS DEFEAT APPLETON IN FIRST CAGE GAME

Kaukauna—The Cubs, local amateur basketball team, defeated the Appleton team by a 14 to 8 score in a hard fought game Saturday evening in the auditorium. The game was the first of the season for the Kaukauna team. Playing against a team with a long string of victories and only one previous defeat the Cubs not only outplayed, but showed better endurance than their more seasoned opponents. Miller, the Cubs' midget forward, had a dead eye for the basket and made six of the Bruins' markers.

The score at the end of the first half was 8 to 4 in favor of the Green City basketballers, but from then on they were unable to score a point against the peppy Kaukauna outfit. A fairly good sized crowd witnessed the game.

The Cubs are coached and managed by P. R. McGinnis, Y. M. C. A. secretary.

The Cubs are negotiating with Forest Junction for a game here sometime this week. The lineup for the Cubs is Miller, F. J. Merceness, I. F. Kilgas, C. Brenzel, J. F. and Bissel, F. F.

Bear Creek Woman Was One Of Neenah Pioneers

Bear Creek—A resident of this village for nearly 30 years and of the state of Wisconsin for more than 70 years, Mrs. Charlotte Sweet has seen quite a bit of the early, rugged pioneer life of this region.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Sayers, came from New York and settled in Wisconsin when she was but a year old, and she grew up in surroundings as wild as some of the northernmost frontiers still are. She was born in New York on Sept. 23, 1855.

Mrs. Sweet's first home in Wisconsin was at Neenah. She was married there to Reuben Sweet on Jan. 1, 1870. In the course of the succeeding years she lived at Waterloo, Iowa, Neenah, town of Mafie, in Outagamie-co., and the village of Bear Creek. Her husband, a veteran of the Civil war, died Feb. 19, 1925. She is the mother of nine children, six of whom are living. They are: Mrs. Florence Jackson, and Mrs. Pearl Jackson, Pickrell; Mrs. Mattie Bos, Deer Park; William, of Appleton; Arthur, Lily, and Orin, of Allensburg, Wash. Mrs. Sweet also has twenty-eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

In spite of her advanced years, she is quite active, does her own housework and her gardening and mingles freely in the society of her townpeople. She tells many striking anecdotes of her early pioneer life. Once when she was still a small child at Neenah and her parents were distressed for lack of meat and money and had just offered prayers for food, a deer came and stood before the door. Her father had a flint lock gun, similar to those used in the Revolutionary war, but the hammer was broken. He remarked that he could kill the deer if the gun only had a hammer, whereupon her mother took a carpenter's hammer while her father handled the gun, and thus they had the satisfaction of killing the deer and providing food for the family.

Another story Mrs. Sweet relates is one showing how her mother saved the pork supply of the household in the early pioneer days. Mrs. Sayer one night heard the family's pig squealing in the pen. She hurried out and saw a large black bear dragging the porker away. She held a lighted candle in her hand and relying upon the light to scare the invader, she went toward the bear and held the candle in its face. The bear became alarmed and backed through the doorway of the hen coop. The mother slammed shut the door and called in some neighbors who killed the bear.

COURT QUASHES CHARGE AGAINST WAUPACA BROKER

Real Estate Man Vindicated—High School Basketball Team Defeated

Waupaca—No cause for action was the decision of the court in the case of the State vs. Henry Indestad. It was alleged that Mr. Indestad sold property with out obtaining a license to act as a real estate broker and charging a commission for handling a transaction. The case had been postponed from time to time and a recent hearing of testimony taken convinced the court that the action was unwarranted. The complaining witness was an attorney of the Wisconsin Real Estate board.

Reconstruction of the Rexall drug store is progressing rapidly. The building will house a model store, for estate, and operated by A. J. Murphy was on Jan. 4 badly damaged by the interior by fire and water. Workmen started the reconstruction from the basement up. Upon completion the building will house a model store. For the present Mr. Murphy is doing business in the J. M. Ware building at the north end of Main street, where he is receiving stock preparatory to the opening on the old site.

HUGH LOSES

In one of the most hard fought and closely contested basketball games ever played on the local floor, Kaukauna high school defeated the Waupaca high, 28-16.

The visitors started the scoring with field goals the first few minutes of play, and it looked as though it was going to be Kaukauna all the way. However, Waupaca broke into the scoring column during the second quarter, and the half ended with Kaukauna leading 23-5.

The second half was a different story, for Waupaca came out of its lethargy and taking the aggressive, made the heavier and more experienced opponents extend themselves to maintain their lead. At this time, Coach "Tiger" Smith's "tigers" looked and played more like kittens, for the Waupaca team outplayed and outscored them during the entire second half. But their rally fell short of breaking down the lead Kaukauna had piled up during the first half.

The locals' next game will be played against the fast New London High school team next Friday night at New London.

Gas Distended Stomach Often Proves Fatal

Keep This Elixir On Hand

You can be so distressed with gas and fullness that you think your heart is going to stop beating. Your stomach may be so distended that your breathing is short and gasping. You are dizzy and pray for quick relief—what's to be done.

Just one tablespoonful of Darr's Mentha-Pepsin and in ten minutes the gas disappears, the pressing on the heart ceases and you can breathe deep and naturally.

Oh! What blessed relief, but why not get rid of such attacks altogether? Why have chronic indigestion at all? Especially when Voigt's Drug Store or any drugist anywhere guarantees Darr's Mentha-Pepsin, a pleasant elixir, to end indigestion, acute or chronic, or money back.

CLARA BOW IS SEEN IN DRAMATIC ROLE

The screen's most famous flapper Clara Bow, will be seen in an entirely new character in "Empty Hearts," at the New Bijou Theatre today and Tuesday.

Miss Bow plays the part of the wife and mother, love for whom creates the situation around which the plot of the picture revolves. She shares stellar honors with John Bowers and Lillian Rich, both of whom are screen favorites.

Others in the cast of box office quality are Charles Murray, Joan Standing, Little Buck Black and John Miljan.

"Empty Hearts" is based on a story by Evelyn Campbell, the widely known author, which was published in a recent issue of the Metropolitan Magazine. It deals with an entirely novel triangle, in that it tells of a woman's patient struggle to win her husband's love from the grave of his first wife.

The picture is filled with pathos and sympathetic appeal, and sufficient mystery and suspense to make it screen entertainment of the highest quality.

DREAMS OF PAST IN "MEMORY LANE"

The happy lane of memory, down which everyone travels in moments of reverie, is the theme of "Memory Lane," a John M. Stahl production, which is showing at the Elite Theatre 3 days starting today. Eleanor Boardman, Conrad Nagel and William Haines are featured.

Stahl's interpretation of memory is that in it we dream of things as they were, or as they might have been. We live our lives over—and more wisely. Hand in hand with those we love we again walk in the twilight of the past, casting aside our cares and living again in our joys.

A large cast supports the principal players. It is a Louis B. Mayer release through First National.

"ABIE'S IRISH ROSE"

Anne Nichols record-breaking comedy success, "Abie's Irish Rose," which fulfills an engagement at the Fischer's Appleton Theatre on Wednesday night, Feb. 17, has been hailed by the press and public as one of the biggest laughing hits in years. Aside from its comedy and funny situations, the play has a well-defined story replete with tenderness and human interest, so that the auditor finds himself roaring with laughter one second and an instant later wiping away a stray tear from his or her eye.

Anne Nichols has been responsible for some of Broadway's biggest hits, among which may be mentioned "Just Married," "Linger Longer Letty," the vehicle in which Charlotte Greenwood scored the biggest hit of her career; May Robson's "Just a Little Bit Old Fashioned" and several others.

"Abie's Irish Rose," briefly, tells the story of the love and marriage of

FORMER MRS. RUDOLPH VALENTINO RETURNS TO SCREEN

Jean Acker, the former Mrs. Valentino, after a long vaudeville engagement has returned to the screen as a featured player in "Braveheart," the Cecil B. DeMille production showing at Fischer's Appleton Theatre, this Monday and Tuesday. Rod La Rocque is starred in this epochal photoplay of college and wigwam life and is supported by Lillian Rich, Robert Edeson and Tyrone Power in addition to Jean Acker. Rod La Rocque plays the part of "Braveheart," the son of an Indian chief sent to a white man's college to learn his ways. He becomes the hero of his football team, and falls in love with a white girl. URGE BEAR CREEK PEOPLE TO KEEP UP HIGH SCHOOL

State School Inspector Offers Three Solutions to Education Problem

Characterizing the family as the cornerstone of democracy, George Dick, Madison, state inspector of rural schools, stressed the importance of the right home life, as a proper foundation for a child's education, in an address at the school fair at Bear Creek Friday afternoon and evening. About 100 persons attended the exposition in the afternoon, and nearly all were present in the evening. Two schools in the vicinity of Bear Creek participated in the exhibit, and first prize was won by the Maple Corner school.

Mr. Dick emphasized the importance of keeping a high school in the Bear Creek district, as there has been talk of discontinuing the school there. He offered three plans as a solution of the educational problem as it affects the village of Bear Creek, and surrounding territory. The first was the continuance of the present high school, the second was the building of a consolidated school for the village and vicinity, and the third was the erection of a free union high school for the village and adjacent territory. The speaker said that a suitable school for the district would cost in the neighborhood of $40,000.

A. G. Meating, county superintendent, talked on the cooperation of parents, school officials and teachers, and emphasized the importance of schools keeping abreast of modern times, rather than lagging behind and remaining as they were when the fathers and mothers of the present school children were receiving their elementary education. Mr. Meating complimented the schools on the quality of the work they exhibited at the fair. James Moxon, principal of the Bear Creek high school, also spoke.

The Maple Corner school was awarded a prize of $5 for winning the exhibit contest. The rating of the other schools, and their prizes are: Meadow Grove, second, $3; Nicholson, third, $4; Elm Leaf, fourth, $3; Golden Hill, fifth, $2. The other schools participating each received a premium of $1. They are: Eldersow, Clover Blossom, Coffey Bridge, Clover Lawn, and Riverdale. Judges of the exhibits were: E. E. Carr, supervising teacher of Waupaca-co., and W. P. Hagman,

ARRANGE BIG SCHEDULE FOR WILLIAMS HERE

Social Worker Will Meet Numerous Committees in Two Day Visit

The meeting of the augmented welfare committee of the chamber of commerce studying community fund projects, scheduled for next Wednesday evening has been changed to 15 Wednesday afternoon. This has been made necessary by the fact that Mr. Williams, secretary of the Wisconsin Conference of Social Work, whom the committee wished to meet, will not be able to be here in the evening. A complete schedule of conferences of committee groups that labored in the Better Cities contest has been arranged for Tuesday and Wednesday. Mr. Williams will be here both days to interview the various groups.

The Town and Country Relations group and the Public Administration group will meet with Mr. Williams at luncheon at 12:15 Tuesday at the Conway hotel. The Education and Library groups will be interviewed at 4:30 in the afternoon in the assembly room of the chamber of commerce.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c. adv.

A. at 12:15 for the Social Work and Health groups, an athletic committee of the chamber of commerce studying the community fund idea at 4:30 in the afternoon at the chamber of commerce assembly room.

Internal Revenue Bureau Holds Up Blanks Until Tax Law Is Passed

Federal income tax return blanks are not expected to arrive here until the latter part of next week, or possibly even later, according to George Catlin, deputy-revenue collector in charge of the local office in the city hall.

Delay in receipt of the 1925 blanks is due to the uncertain state of the new income tax bill still before the United States congress. Although the internal revenue service realizes the congestion that will take place within the three weeks for filing returns, it intends to wait until the bill becomes a law. CHURCH SERVICE TO OPEN CIVIC WEEK MAR. 7-13

Seven Days of Community
Evangelism to Be Directed by Dan Weigle

Civic week, which will be observed in Appleton the week of March 7 to 13, will be a combined endeavor to rouse the local population to a realization of the city's resources and its opportunities.

Coming as it does after a re-analysis of Appleton showing in the recent Better Cities contest, which will be conducted Tuesday and Wednesday by Aubrey Williams, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Conference of Social work, in conferences with the ten committees who labored in the contest, civic week will be the means of bringing home to the people just what Appleton can do to attain its highest ideals.

The man who will be at the head of the movement for the regeneration of the community is Dan Weigle, St. Paul, nationally known as one of the foremost speakers on the subject of community welfare, as well as a leader in the promotion of civic ideals.

A week's program of "community evangelism" will start with Civic Sunday, March 7, when a community service will be held at 3:30 in the afternoon in Lawrence Memorial chapel. The churches of the community are cooperating in this event. Mr. Weigle will deliver an address on "The Soul of Appleton." It is a local application of his famous address on "The Soul of a City," which he has delivered in most of the large centers of population of the United States.

Mr. Weigle will visit the Appleton high school at 2:30 Monday morning, March 8, and will make a high school survey of Appleton.

The first part of the week Mr. Weigle will be the speaker at luncheon clubs. He will address the Lions club Tuesday noon and the Rotary club Tuesday evening.

Civic week activities will reach their peak on Wednesday, March 10, at a civic dinner at which all the various community interests will be represented. It will be in the nature of an "all-products dinner" during which nothing but Outagamie-co products will be served. Mr. Weigle will speak on "The Undeveloped Resources of Appleton," based upon the survey made in the Better Cities contest and the high school survey.

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., the chamber of commerce and the luncheon clubs are supporting civic week movement.

FIND JOB AS POLICEMAN TO BE DETECTIVE

In order to become a detective one should first secure a position on the police force of his community, or if he lives in a very small town, he should get a job in the police department of a larger city, was the advice given to an Appleton resident, who aspires to be a detective, by the Post-Crescent Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C. The person seeking this information told Mr. Haskin that he had little faith in schools which advertised in papers and magazines that they teach one how to become a detective in a few lessons, and that he wanted to be directed to some reliable authority.

A Post-Crescent reader at New London asked Mr. Haskin in what manner the Liberty bell became cracked, and where the race of American Indians originated. The Liberty bell was cracked while being tolled on July 3, 1835 in memory of Chief Justice Marshall. There are several theories regarding the second question, according to Mr. Haskin. Some believe that the American Indian is one of the ten lost tribes of Israel, others that he is of Egyptian origin, some that he came to America from Asia over Bering Strait or islands in the strait now sunk below the sea, and still others that he is of Mongolian descent. Mr. Haskin received 81 letters from Post-Crescent readers for the week ended Jan. 28.

As the law now stands many cities including Menasha are handicapped because their bridges are not as long as required by the law.

An effort also is to be made to have the present income law amended so as to make it possible for municipalities to secure a greater percentage of the income tax. Formerly municipalities received 70 per cent, but at present they receive only 50 per cent.

As the meeting will be in session for two days it is possible the mid-monthly meeting of the common council Tuesday night will be postponed until Thursday evening.

NEENAH DOWNS MENASHA IN 1ST GAME, 17 TO 11

Huge Crowd Sees Christoph's
Team Triumph Over Menasha Quintet

Neenah—Coach Christoph's Neenah high school basketball team won the first of a two games series with the Menasha high school team Saturday night in S. A. Cook armory by a score of 17 to 11 before a crowd of 1500 people. The second game will be played at the armory on the evening of March 5.

The doors of the armory were opened at 6 o'clock and 7 o'clock standing room was at a premium. The game started at 8:30.

The Neenah and Menasha teams are almost on a par, but after the Neenah captain, Frank Schneller, had been taken out on four personal fouls and John Schneller, 14, a Freshman, had been placed in the pivot position, Neenah on new life and forged ahead.

Neenah scored eight points in the second half to three by Menasha. The game was almost an even break from the start, the first half ending by a score of 7 to 6 in favor of Neenah. At end of the third quarter the score was 9 to 8 in Neenah's favor and after that the Neenah team pulled out ahead.

Ehrgott, forward, starred for Neenah, making 10 of the 17 points. W. Klutz did the steller work for Menasha. On the first half tossed, Pierce fouled Ehrgott, Ehrgott making the free throw. Mottl followed with a long well aimed throw from center, making two points for Menasha. Ehrgott was fouled by Smith and Klutz, giving the Neenah forward two more free throws. W. Klutz secured two points from close to the basket. Stulp was put in for Cross. Ehrgott got a lucky basket from one side and after some good team work Stulp slipped in a counter.

Klutz secured a point on a foul by Ehrgott and Pierce made a point on a foul by Schneller. The half ended to 6 in Neenah's favor.

Klutz was the first scorer in the second half making a long drive from near center. Schneller fouled twice, Ehrgott once and Smith once none of which were made in attempted free throws. Schneller made his fourth personal foul and was taken out. John Schneller was substituted. Smith fouled Ehrgott who made one of the two attempts. The score was tied, 8 to 8. Smith fouled to Gaertner who tallied one on a free throw ending the quarter 9 to 8 in Neenah's favor.

Ehrgott fouled Smith who made the point and after a series of passes Ehrgott scored a basket. Schneller rung the bell for two more points. Menasha was stopped by the solid Neenah's defense and relied on long shots to make points. Pierce, from almost the entire length of the hall, made a sensational basket. During the last few minute rally Stulp registered two points and Ehrgott found the opening for another, ending the game 17 to 11.

SPINSTERHOOD

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BARBARA HAWLEY, 25, proves her self-reliance and independence by jilting her fiancé, BRUCE REYNOLDS, an architect, and getting a job on Appleton Telegraph.

Her desire to see life is gratified promptly. BOB JEFFRIES, police reporter, takes her to a roadhouse dinner and introduces her to JEROME BALL, man about town. As they are talking, a prominent man seated nearby kills himself. Barbara picks up a scarf dropped by his unknown woman companion.

Bruce, meanwhile, enters the firm of Manners, Stone and Reynolds, and an ambitious development, Vale Acres, is launched. LYDIA STACY, rich widow, takes a liking to him but he rebuffs her, whereupon she tells ANDREW McDERMOTT, managing editor of the Telegraph, that she believes there is crookedness in the firm.

Barbara, among other duties, conducts a love column and gives advice to a correspondent, "Victrola," on how to land a "socially superior young man." Later she learns that Bruce has married a factory girl, VIOLETTA CRANBY—the one to whom she has been giving advice.

Barbara's mother dies. Barbara shares an in-town apartment with McDermott's daughter, Fanny, who is in love with Jerome Ball. Unable to argue her out of her infatuation, Barbara sends for Ball, and Fanny walks in as the two are talking. She accuses Barbara of trying to steal Jerome for herself to keep from being an old maid, but after a short spat there is a reconciliation.

McDermott asks Barbara if she wants to cover the convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

COW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII
Barbara gasped. "The big women's convention? Not really?" McDermott smiled. "Yes, he said, 'Give us interviews with all the feminine celebrities—watch the sessions and give us the laughs you can.' That's what the great mass of people like."

"Jeffries will go ahead and give us a preview on all the preliminaries. I'll stay through the convention. You'll only have to worry about the interviews and so forth."

"Of course I'm thrilled over it, Mr. McDermott," answered Barbara, her cheeks glowing. "When do I leave?"

"In about two weeks," was the answer.

The time passed quickly. Barbara bought new clothes—a striking white suit and tailored hats and shoes, a new dress for dinner and luncheon and an evening dress beyond her means.

Fanny met her as she struggled in the apartment steps one night just before the departure, her arms full of packages.

"Why, Babs," laughed the girl, taking some of them from her, "you've bought out the town."

In Barbara's bedroom they unpacked the dresses and shoes, the sheer hose and delicate handkerchiefs. "You'll look like a grand duchess once removed, when you descend upon that convention," laughed Fanny. "Honestly, Babs, you ought to buy out the town every once in a while. It gives you such a pretty color."

Barbara glanced in the mirror. It was true. She looked younger and prettier than for many months. "It's wonderful what clothes will do for you," she said. "I hadn't realized how few of them I'd had till I got these and began to get the kick out of them."

"It's also wonderful what happiness will do for you," remarked Fanny, wisely. "You look now as if you had something to live for."

Barbara got up and whirled around in her tiptoes to Fanny's evident astonishment. "I have. What more could I ask than a chance to cover this Women's Federation convention? It's the chance of a lifetime."

Fanny shook her head. "I'm afraid I could ask more of life than a tiresome old convention, with a lot of upstage women to interview. But," she brightened, "maybe you'll meet a perfectly fascinating man on the train. With that white suit and that green hat, you ought to have the pick of 'em."

Barbara laughed. "Honestly, Fanny, one would think you hadn't thought in the world for anything except men."

"Well, I have, but not more than one or two. You might as well admit there's nothing else as interesting." Fanny was trying on one hat after another and prouetting before the looking glass.

"That's a broad statement, young lady," answered Barbara.

Fanny took off the green hat and came back to hop in the middle of the bed among the new clothes. "Look here, Babs, why don't you try falling in love? It's wonderful. And you're such a peach, almost any man would be glad to have you. I can't see why you've never tried it."

Barbara's face was sober. "Perhaps I have, Fanny."

The day came at last. Barbara found herself the center of interest in the Telegraph staff, as she closed her desk and turned to leave. Miss Badger was studiously regarding a page of copy. She did not look up when everybody else shouted farewell to Barbara.

McDermott came to the outside gate of the office with her. "Keep a stiff upper lip, Miss Hawley," he said. "There'll be terrible confusion. And you'll be lucky if the hotel holds that room we reserved for you tooms will be as scarce as hen's teeth this month. But if you get in trouble of any kind, wire me."

Barbara bade him goodbye and caught a taxi to Law-st. She found Fanny in the kitchen, employed in the unaccustomed work of getting dinner. The girl blushed as Barbara entered. "I think I've burned nearly everything, and this gravy's curdled. Babs," she apologized. "But I was determined you shouldn't have to stand out here over this stove after you got home. You must be too excited to breathe."

"Too tired to breathe, instead. I think I'll slip into a negligee for dinner. You're a dear to think of me this way, Fanny."

Barbara's train was to leave at nine o'clock. She dressed, finished her packing and was ready to leave the house at eight. Fanny hung about, visibly struggling against tears.

Barbara stopped once and laughed. "Really, Fanny, you act as if I were going to die, or something. Don't be foolish. I'll be back in a few days, and you'll have a good rest while I'm gone."

An almost imperceptible shadow passed over Barbara's face, but Fanny saw it. "You needn't worry, Babs," she cried. "I won't commit any crimes while you're gone. I'll not see anybody you don't want me to see." Her face, childish and weebegone, moved Barbara to pity.

"I know you won't, dear," she said, as she went out to the waiting taxi. As she went down the steps a boy rushed up and handed her a box of flowers. In the taxi she opened them and found Jerome Ball's card with the single word, "Apologies."

The trip was the most delightful one that Barbara had known. She lay back in a chair on the observation platform and watched a yellow moon come up far across the hills. Toward midnight she went to bed and slept blissfully all night, relaxed from the knowledge that for a few hours at least no hungry press was waiting for her copy.

Breakfast was a new pleasure. Barbara ordered fruit and eggs and honey and muffins and sat reveling in the gleaming linen and silverware. She had never lost her child's delight in eating on the dinner.

She had slipped a little volume of Anatole France in her purse, but she was too happy to read. She wondered if just one long journey like this after another. But the jaded traveling men around her belied the idea.

At the convention city the station was thronged. She found a taxi and drove to the hotel. Its lobby was still more crowded than the station. The relief had been held, to her great relief. She unpacked the new dresses and lay down for a nap. There would be nothing to do till tomorrow.

At dinner in the bronze room, she met several other newspaper women. They accepted her easily as one of the tribe.

A very thin woman with snappy black eyes leaned across the table to speak to her. "It's going to be a great picnic, my dear. If you've never done it before, you'd better stick close to me."

Barbara smiled back at her. "I shall probably need your help. What paper do you write for?"

The older woman flushed. "No special paper now. I'm a free lance." Barbara thought she caught a flicker of amusement across the face of the two women who overheard the remark.

After dinner, the women reporters went sight seeing. They wandered through the old public square, where fountain played and ran down little cascades over lily pads.

The spot of green was shut in by high gray buildings.

Molly Perkins, the black-eyed woman, walked beside Barbara. She talked constantly, telling anecdotes, quoting witty sayings, commenting on life, with always a faint strain of defiant braggadoelo. Barbara listened, wondering.

Part of the crowd decided upon motion pictures for entertainment. Barbara and several others declined to go.

"Come back to the hotel with me, Miss Hawley," said Miss Perkins. "We'll go up to my room and have a good talk."

Barbara assented, somewhat unwillingly.

Miss Perkins' room proved an enigma. It was cluttered with nondescript articles. There were two magnificent Spanish silk shawls, a milk bottle, an array of high-heeled slippers, a stack of copy paper on the floor, a broken fan on a chair and a much battered old trunk in one corner.

"You see before you the sole fruits of a mispent life," said Miss Perkins. "Anybody I had chosen newspaper work deserves what he gets. That's all."

Barbara looked at the trunk. It was a queer sight. She opened it and found a box of copy paper, a broken fan on a chair and a much battered old trunk in one corner.

all I say. Though it isn't so bad for those of us who make a success."

Barbara looked at the woman's shabby shoes and at the lines between the sharp black eyes.

"Yes," continued Molly, "it's going to be a great game this time. I can show you the ropes if you like. I'll sell my stuff to several of my regular magazines and syndicates. Always a market for it, you know."

"And if you wish, I'd be glad to conduct you around."

Barbara fidgeted slightly. "Thank you, I fear you'll be too busy to bother with me. But I may call for help."

The woman brightened. "I've been in the game 20 long years, my dear," she said.

Again Barbara glanced at the cluttered room and the old trunk. She shivered over so slightly and rose to go. "I think I'll go to bed, Miss Perkins. I'm very tired."

Molly Perkins reluctantly followed her to the door. As Barbara put her hand on the knob, the other woman said, "Oh, by the way, could you lend me ten dollars until Saturday? I ought to have a draft that hasn't got here yet."

Barbara looked in her purse. "I haven't it in cash, but I'll go down and get a traveler's check cashed for you."

The woman's smile was brilliant. "Thank you so much."

Barbara caught an elevator. The lobby was still crowded with laughing groups of women. Barbara caught glimpses of several faces known to the national eye. She walked along, fascinated by the novelty of the experience.

As she neared the cashier's window, a man came hurrying around a corner. His face was sleek and his eyes were uneasy.

Barbara stared at him. Then she hastened to the hotel register. The clerk opened the recent pages for her, and she ran her finger down the column of arrivals.

She stopped at the name, Winthrop R. Manning.

Then she rushed to the telegraph booth near the elevator. She found a pad and pencil.

In a moment she handed a scrawled message to the man behind the counter. "Push that through."

Adventures Of The Twins

THE PARTY

Calumny and her birthday party was a jolly affair. She never guessed a word of what was going on until the Twins escorted her to the dining room of Mister Havabook's house where all the guests were waiting.

There stood the birthday cake on the middle of the table that Dick Dink had made with its one pink candle burning in the middle.

Miss Calumny, for all of her battered condition, was only one year old.

"Many happy returns," cried all the dolls loudly as she entered. "Oh, thank you all so much," said Calumny, promptly smothering her with a handkerchief. She hid the fact that her eyes didn't match.

"This is with my love," said Miss Raggedy, presenting Calumny with the newspaper rose she had made.

"It smells delicious," said Calumny. "I'm ever and ever so much obliged, I'm sure."

"I made it myself," said Miss Raggedy proudly. "It's flavored with vanilla. Mister Havabook gave me a few drops out of his bottle."

"Vanilla is my favorite perfume," said Calumny sweetly. "I'm sorry that I have no dress to put it in, but it will look elegant behind my ear."

Then it was time for Miss Jiggs to present her gift.

"Here, my dear, but there's one," said Miss Jiggs, producing a clean necktie from her pocket. "It is made from the very best navy beans, ten cents a pound, three for a quarter. Dean neckties are positively ultra just now. You will be in the height of fashion."

"I'm sure of that, thank you, Miss Jiggs," said Calumny politely, but secretly wishing that Miss Jiggs had thought of giving her one of her three dresses instead. "Here I am without a stitch to my back but a waistline," said she to herself. "I'll just do it up with enough clothes to suit a shoe. But I couldn't be grateful for small favors. I suppose she means well."

No Calumny smiled sweetly and allowed Nancy to tie the bean necktie in a most low behind.

"Here is something toward your trousseau," said Belinda, who was the next to wish Calumny many happy returns. And she held out a pink cotton stocking.

"Dear me! How kind of you!" said Calumny, who was genuinely pleased this time. "I'm sure it will be becoming. I used to have two when I was new alone. Then, I should say, but my mistress took them off one day to see how they would look on a girl. They flew out of the playroom and down the stairs and I have never seen them since."

Nobody reminded the poor thing that she had also lost both of her legs as well as her stockings, and that the leg she now owned were not mates, having been donated by Mister Havabook, who had hunted up odd and ends in his tinkering room to make her over.

Teddy gave her a brass curtain ring for a bracelet, which he had found in Hyde Co. Land, and the Tin Soldier gave her a bit of paint which had chipped off his red boots. Miss Tootsie Bobb and Miss Coroline didn't give her anything, which was mean, but Calumny pretended to be glad they didn't.

"Oh, but so you are having a party without me?" said a new voice. "I have a warrant for your arrest. It was Shift Whisker, the rat. (To Be Continued.)

Mr. Prescott told the reporter that he had a different theory from that of Commissioner Laddlow, which was that the thieves obtained the neck lace from the safe before Miss Ellington arrived in the room, and then hearing others coming on the scene they decided to kidnap Miss Ellington. One of the men was entrusted with the pearls. The ring-leader of the gang, thinking the jewels were perfectly safe, carried the girl out, and the men dropped the jewel case in the case, thinking that if they were caught, nothing would be found upon them.

That the one man who was not captured came back to find the jewels and failed to find them, shows that he had no knowledge of where they had been secreted. Consequently, the police think the man who dropped the jewels is one of the men who are now in prison. They think that the man decided to doublecross his companions, hoping that the jewels would not be found until he could regain his liberty. All the arrested men will be questioned again today to find out if any one of them knows anything about the pearls.

The Prescott pearls have come to be almost as famous as the Hope diamond, and it would not be surprising if Mrs. Prescott disposed of them in some way, giving the proceeds to charity.

The jewels now consist of two necklaces, as Mrs. Prescott's sister left to her her wonderful necklace, among her other jewels, at the time of her deplorable death.

The man who made the second attempt to obtain the pearls is still at large. Mr. Prescott is extremely nervous about his wife and children as long as this man is free, and he has offered a reward of ten thousand dollars to any one who will apprehend him. It is very probable that Mrs. Prescott and her two boys will leave the city for a while until things have calmed down a bit.

"If it were possible for me to get away from my business," said Mr. Prescott to the reporter, "I would leave for Europe next week and remain an indefinite time. Mrs. Prescott's mother is over there, and she is very anxious to have her daughter with her; but of course my wife would not leave me for a long visit."

"Anyway," he continued, "you may imagine the fact that Mrs. Prescott's pearls, if they are stolen in the future, will have to be taken from a safety deposit vault, and not with any consent will my wife wear them again. Ever since she has had them, and especially since her jewels have been augmented by her sister's pearls, they have been a source of great trouble and anxiety to her. They are not worth the grief they have caused. Poor little Miss Ellington's death can be directly attributed to them, and all the pearls in the world are not worth one human life."

LAWRENCE FIVE TROUNCES MILTON, 28-12

Scores Of Caging Games Are Rapidly Mounting

BY ART CARLSON
Basketball scores are mounting. They're getting higher all the time. A few years ago 20 points were usually sufficient to win. Now a team invariably has to hit well above the 30-mark to have a chance. And even then it's no sure bet.

Just take a glance at the scores being turned in by Western Conference teams. Many of them have chalked up a combined total of more than 70 points for an evening's work.

Northwestern has furnished a concrete, though rather tragic example. The Purple has hit the 30-figure consistently since the start of the Big Ten wrangle. But it has met with little success.

Against Michigan the Evanston ensemble scored 30 points. Michigan won by a field-goal margin. Against Purdue, Northwestern tallied 35. Purdue won by three points. Against Indiana the Purple ran up 31 points. But Indiana won by eight points.

There were three of Northwestern's dropped in a row. It scored enough to win all of them. It averaged exactly 33 to the fracas. But couldn't check out a single victory.

I haven't the figures at hand but I am of the opinion Northwestern has scored more points at this writing than any outfit in the Western Conference. And yet the Purple is floundering around near the bottom of the pile.

Other teams have been a bit more fortunate than Northwestern. But, as stated, many have been forced into the "late 30's" to pull out victories.

Strict enforcement of the playing rules has tended to boost the scores. Not so far back a total of 10 free tosses was a good average.

PRICE THROWS IMPORTANT
Foul shooting didn't play a very big part in the game.

But it's different now. About as many fouls are being converted into points as there are field goals chalked up. In a recent Big Ten encounter 31 personal fouls were called. Last 25 of them were turned into points. In eight games played one week, as many players were banished for the "four personal" rule. Iowa lost two of its stars in one evening.

Are the officials calling 'em too close? I believe so. Basketball is necessarily a rough game. There is plenty of personal contact; body checking, charging, and so on. Some of it is intentional; some not.

Intentional rough play should bring a penalty, of course. But those in charge should not draw too fine a line. Too fine a line for some infraction of the playing code slows the game. It takes away action one of the main things in basketball. Needless to state, when 30 or more fouls are called the game loses much of its luster for the fans that enjoy it for the thrills it gives them.

Recently I saw a professional league contest in which 13 fouls were inflicted. There were 27 points accrued from the free throw line. For few field goals were thrown. The field goal is the big thrill, a long toss from underhanded, a clever shot from underneath the hoop after a pretty pass. Just what the crowd wants to see. The game I refer to turned out to quite a nice exhibition of foul-shooting ability. That's not basketball!

Giving the players a little more leeway before tacking on a penalty would place less of a premium on free-throwing expertness, would furnish more action and would make pocket translators excess equipment at the games.

Their ability to cage fingers from the free throw line gave the Galpin Hardware basketball team their fifth victory of the season in the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Basketball league Saturday evening. The Riverside Co. squad being the victim, 20 to 11. The win firmly entrenched the Hardware aggregation in first place in the league, increasing their lead over Citizens' bank to a full game.

To turn back the Riverside representatives, the Galpin players scored 11 out of 13 free throws. They led the Riverside 9 to 5 at half time, although outscored in field goals. The winners counted on all six of their tries from the foul line in the first half.

Schweger and Berro were the outstanding performers for the losers, while Bahrle and Bloomer performed the best for the Galpin crew.

The other Saturday game, which was scheduled between the Citizens' bank and Kimberly-Clark Co., was postponed.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

TEMPERAMENT
If you're a genius, you have a perfect right to be temperamental.

At least that is the thought of Bill Tilden, tennis champion. It will be recalled that Sir William "blew up" recently when he was ruled out as a scrub.

In justice to the distinguished Mr. Tilden, it might be said that he took the decision over the rules committee.

Tilden at present is elevating the stage. While he isn't doing a better job of the fourth than Barrymore would on the tennis court.

Interviewed relative to the chances of Helen Wills against Suzanne Lenglen, Tilden said:

"Suzanne should win but may have her troubles. If Miss Wills plays a smashing game, she should try Babe Ruth's stuff on the tennis court. Suzanne is the better strategist."

"Miss Wills has the poker face, but Suzanne has the chess brain. She will prove too smart for the American champion unless Miss Wills simply plays her off her feet, speaking literally."

No doubt Miss Wills has her game against the spry Suzanne nipped out. I understand it, she intends playing the style game that Tilden suggests.

GETTING GOOD START
The Philadelphia Athletics and Washington Senators are unquestionably pennant contenders. All experts agree.

Getting away to a good start means much to a club with championship aspirations. The American League schedule for 1926 may hand one of the two above mentioned teams a stiff job.

It is a baseball theory that the ability of a team to knock off its strongest contender, is very often the margin that decides pennant issues. Washington had the edge on the Athletics last season and won the American League pennant.

Each team in the majors plays 22 games against every other club, 11 at home and abroad. This year's American League schedule calls for Washington and the Athletics to meet eight times in the first 11 games of the season. In other words, the 22-game series will be more than one-third over in less than two weeks of play.

If either club should get away to a bad break in these eight games, it

BADGER ELEVEN BEGINS PRACTICE

First of Series of Lectures and Demonstrations Starts Tuesday Night

Milwaukee—(AP)—Training for the 1926 football season has begun at the University of Wisconsin.

The first meeting of the Wisconsin squad was held Friday afternoon and brought out more than 50 candidates. It was largely for the purpose of organizing the squad preliminary to spring training.

The work will begin in earnest Tuesday night, when the men will meet for the first of a series of lectures and demonstrations of plays. Thereafter, the squad will meet two or three times a week. George Little, director of athletics, and head coach, said.

The meeting will give Coach Little an opportunity to give the 1926 freshman squad further instructions in the fundamentals and polish up the reserves of the varsity squad of the past season.

A number of the varsity regulars are engaged in other sports and are not participating in the football work at this time. They include Jeff Burman, who is working out with the crew, Lloyd Larson and Fritz Radke, who are on the baseball squad; Rallie Barnum, a member of the basketball team, and Wall Meagge and Bill Spies, wrestlers.

Captain Doyle Harmon, Groff, Stumler, Wike, Wilson, Von Brunn, Cameron, and others however, are on hand to begin preparations for next fall.

BANKS ON JOE BUSH
Now they are saving that the principal reason for the passing of Joe Bush from St. Louis was due to luxury in observing training rules.

I know nothing of such things. However, I do know that Joe Bush was a pretty good pitcher last season. I look for him to be an even better one with the American League champs.

The reason—the much larger playing field at Washington. The short right field bleachers at St. Louis bothered Bush.

"I never feel safe unless I have a five-run lead in this park," was a remark Bush made to me one day last summer at St. Louis. "A pony-fly home run with the bases filled can wipe out four runs at any time."

Some of the experts who argue that Bush is hard to handle won't even make an impression on Stanley Harris. They said "Dutch" Reuther was a trouble-maker, yet he never behaved

BLUE MACHINE STAGES RALLY AS GAME ENDS

Victory Gives Denny Outfit Even Break in Hard Weekend Schedule

Special to Post-Crescent
Milton—Lawrence college basketball team camped back on Victory Road Saturday evening when the Denny outfit defeated Milton college 28 to 12. It was the second game in as many days for the Lawrence outfit. The Blue and White having dropped a game to the Carroll college five the night before. However, the victory was not at all impressive for the Lawrence five put up an exhibition worthy of themselves.

Captain A. C. Denny started his first regular five against the Miltonites and they immediately stepped into a fight. The local five could not overtake the Lawrence outfit. Denny, who came, Ashman and Priese, divided the scoring honors. Priese, who came, Ashman and Priese, divided the scoring honors. Priese, who came, Ashman and Priese, divided the scoring honors.

The second half was uneventful for nearly 10 minutes, neither team scoring. Lawrence because Milton was keeping them at a respectable distance. Otherwise the Phi Kaps will have clear title to the championship and the loving cup.

FORM "DUB" LEAGUE
Six Lawrence Creek teams entered the "Dub" league and played their first games Saturday morning. The Phi Kaps second team followed the lead set by their first squad as leaders in the big league and won from the Delta Sigs 10 to 6. The D. I. second quint beat the Phi Taus 18 to 12. The Phi Taus ran away with the Phi Chis, 23 to 2.

The "Dub" league was added in Milton by the Denny outfit. Denny's program to provide a sport for every man at the college. Fraternity men not playing on their organization's first aggregation are eligible for the new league.

LAWRENCE HOCKEY SQUAD TRIMS MENASHA, 7 TO 2
Lawrence puck chasers opened the season Saturday afternoon at Whiting Field with a win over the Rounders of Menasha, 7 to 2. Hutton, center, was the college scoring ace with 4 points, and was the all-around star of the game in addition.

The play of the collegians came as a surprise, expectations looking forward a poor showing because of the teams recent formation and lack of practice. Hutton, Mueller, and Schweiger kept the disk in the enemy's territory most of the time, and Aderhold and Weckner at defense held the Menasha stick welders scoreless until the final frame.

BROKAW HALL MEN IN FREE THROW CONTEST
Wednesday night the fresh foul throwers from Brokaw Hall will get together in an inter-sectional contest. Each contestant will be allowed twenty-five shots at the hoop, and the teams having the best percentage will be winners.

The meet counts toward the points which will decide to which section the losing cup will go at the end of the year's competition, and it will also be a good forecast as to the results of the intra-mural foul throwing contests.

ZWICK KNOCKS OUT VETERAN BATTLER
Phil Zwick, Kaukauna battler, stopped Joe Ritchey in the third round of their match at Tampa, Fla. Friday evening, according to a telegram received by Jacob Miller of Kaukauna Saturday morning. The Zwick-Ritchey fight was a preliminary bout on the Dave Shado-Phil Conly card. Zwick's victory was the first time that Ritchey had been felled in 140 fights. The Kaukauna ring artist has been signed to fight Genor Pino, bantamweight champion of Cuba, on Feb. 19 at Tampa. This will be a preliminary on a card in which Rocky Kansas will be the main attraction.

PHI KAPS DEFEAT PHI TAUS TO LEAD GREEK CAGE LOOP

Sig Eps Drop to Second Place When D-1's Take Close 15-12 Win

Phi Kappa Alpha, 5 0 1,000
Sigma Phi Epsilon, 4 1 800
Beta Sigma Phi, 4 1 800
Delta Tau, 3 2 600
Delta Sigma Tau, 2 3 400
Phi Kappa Tau, 1 4 200
Psi Chi Omega, 1 4 200
Theta Phi, 0 5 000

When the D. I.'s nosed out the Sig Eps machine in the Inter-Fraternity league Saturday, 15 to 12, the Phi Kaps were left in undisputed lead, breaking the tie for first honors which has existed since the games began four weeks ago. The Phi Kaps stayed in the winning column by trouncing the Phi Taus 21 to 9.

The game which broke the tie was no walk-away for the winners. The half ended 6 all, and it was not until the last few minutes in the last period that the Delta Tota aggregation could count for the 3 point win. The Sig Eps combination was weakened considerably by the loss of Fritz, whose transfer to Denny's varsity squad makes him ineligible for inter-fraternity competition.

The other games Saturday were less exciting. The Beta five drubbed the Theta quint, 21 to 11, and the Delta Sigs trounced the Psi Chis 13 to 5. The dope looks as if next Saturday's competition will provide the most thrilling games thus far in the Greek schedule. The Sig Eps are slated to meet the Phi Kaps, and if the Sig Eps turn the tide and win from the lead, there will be a triple tie for first place.

Otherwise the Phi Kaps will have clear title to the championship and the loving cup.

CONTEST JUDGES POINT WEAKNESS IN PLAY PROGRAM

Appleton Needs City-wide
Recreation Policy, Survey
Indicates

Appleton's assets and shortcomings in recreation, as revealed by the recent Better Cities contest, will be studied at a community recreation conference to be held in the assembly room of the chamber of commerce Tuesday evening, Feb. 16. Various civic groups will be represented, and Aubrey Williams, secretary of the Wisconsin Conference of Social Work, will be present.

According to judges, Appleton is one of six cities taking part in the contest which ought to have a year-round department of recreation, established after a careful study of the facilities which the cities provide. A definite program and budget as well as a plan for future development definitely under trained leadership definitely participated in by the school board and the city administration, a board organization of municipal athletics sports, communitywide contests for boys and girls including swimming events and life saving, town and country recreation features and contests for all seasons of the year.

SUGGEST CONTESTS
Citywide contests are possible in most cities in every month of the year, it is pointed out. Some of them are described as follows: January—skating, snow modeling, sled, skills, ice hockey; February—ice relays, ice carnival, singing, dog derby, basketball; March—jack knife whittling, hikes, dramatics, indoor baseball, wrestling; April—egg hunt, bird houses, bounce ball; May—hikes, playground baseball, horseshoe, doll house, jackstone; June—bicycle, athletic meet, volleyball, doll buggy—coaster wagon, fete, baseball; July—doll show, sandcraft, swimming and life saving, tennis, folk dance carnival, croquet, paddle tennis, pushmobile; August—paper flower show, ukulele, toy show, golf, pet show, basketball; September—mouth organ, touch football, field hockey, soccer, model airplane; October—lantern parade, Halloween; November—hobby show, checkers; December—chess, Christmas top.

Appleton's present recreational facilities were analyzed by the judges on five bases: Commercial, private, institutional, public and miscellaneous recreation. It was in practically all but institutional recreation that Appleton scored very weak in the Better Cities contest. Of ten cities entered, Appleton ranked seventh in recreation.

Commercial recreation in some respects here was considered above the average. It scored 64 per cent. Pool halls, bowling alleys, skating rinks and amusement parks scored 100 per cent, although the judges admitted having but a few data on which to make their decision. They recommended that commercial places of amusement be supervised with regard to minors and impure language. That Appleton is surrounded by dance halls seems to indicate that the city has been neglecting its own problems. Dance halls as a whole were scored 60 per cent. The motion picture situation was regarded as quite favorable and was rated 80 per cent. The judges commended the city for its home talent baseball which they regarded as more advisable than professional baseball.

While it was conceded that Appleton has an elaborate program of commercial amusements, it was declared to be shirking its own business of providing a broad-year round community recreation program.

In the group of private recreations, men's clubs scored 100 per cent, women's clubs 40 per cent and literary clubs 40 per cent. The program under this head was commended, it being considered that the clubs are in a measure handicapped for lack of facilities under a citywide community recreation program. The score for private recreation as a whole was 60 per cent.

The highly organized athletic program of the Y. M. C. A. helped the city to score 50 points out of 40 as the standard, or a total of 120 per cent, on the subject of gymnasium clubs under the head of institutional recreation.

"Too much cannot be said of the program of the Y. M. C. A." was the judge's comment. "I have rarely seen such a broad program in any city. I heartily commend this program, but see this danger: That the municipality is apt to accept the Y. M. C. A. program for a broad community program, and to shirk its own responsibility."

Appleton scored 100 per cent for having a boy scout program. While it was recognized that the scout organization has had its ups and downs, the value of the Appleton scout work is stressed.

Zero was marked down for the city for not having an inter-organization boys' recreation work council, and on a citywide recreation committee the score was 20 per cent.

A rating of 100 per cent is given the city on girls' activities, organizations for girls, inter-organization recreation work council, and art. The work of the Appleton Women's club was warmly commended, but the need for a much broader recreation program that would reach all the women and girls of the city was pointed out. The work of girl scouts and camp fire girls needs broadening and a community recreation council for girls is recommended. Appleton Women's club provides more than the ordinary art opportunities, and the influence of Lawrence college seems to be felt throughout the city, it was declared. Appleton's rating on institutional recreation was 42 per cent.

Miscellaneous recreations covering such departments as drama council, drama clubs and music appreciation gave Appleton a rating of 26 per cent. It scored 150 of a possible 150 points.

Public recreation was the weakest point in the city's recreational program. The rating was only 33 per cent. On gymnasiums the city scored 80 per cent, on school swimming pools, 90, on play space 40 per cent, on com-

JOHNS HELPS ORGANIZE KIWANIS IN PLYMOUTH

J. L. Johns, lieutenant governor of the Eastern Wisconsin division of Kiwanis clubs, and A. C. Stimers of Philadelphia, field representative of Kiwanis International were in Plymouth Thursday to begin the organization of a Kiwanis club in that city. Mr. Stimers will return to Plymouth Monday with Guy Marston, club trustee, to meet with business men, and determine whether a club is desirable in that community. According to Mr. Johns, it is very probable that a club will be formed. Mr. Stimers organized the new Kiwanis club in Neenah, which had its initial meeting and banquet a week ago. If a club is formed in Plymouth it will be the eighth in the Eastern Wisconsin division, and the forty-fifth in the state.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Take Salts To Flush Kidneys If Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly headache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts can not injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.
